July 2018, Barbara Britt will leave her mark On Washington, DC

FORT WALTON BEACH, Florida [July 10, 2018] – Our very own Barbara Britt will be participating in a three day National Training Seminar hosted by the Military Child Education Coalition in Washington, DC. She has been a trainer with the Coalition for the past four years, and before that sponsored her own S2S (Student2Student group at Fort Walton Beach HS; whose goal is to bring together expertise and practical tools to prepare military children for a bright future.

“It started out as a dream to help families and their children assimilate better while moving across the country or across the world. The program enables all new students to receive the support they need when leaving or starting a new school,” explains Britt.

This national training, learning and networking event is for anyone involved in helping military-connected children thrive. Britt will not only be conducting training for the ES2S program (Elementary Student2Student), but she will also be serving as a panelist on “Addressing Misdirected Aggression: Prevention of Bullying.” She will be representing the S2S (Student2Student) programs K-12, which serves as a protective and preventative initiative.

“Starting out in life as the child of a Navy military father I got to travel the world. Living in Japan, Hawaii, California three separate times, Nevada and our final destination as a family Springhill, Louisiana; I can see how important it is for the military family s to have a support system,” Britt shares.

Britt now lives in the Panhandle and is surrounded by several military bases that she assists by training teachers, counselors and administrators in transitional lifestyles of the military child.

About Barbara Britt

Barbara Britt has a passion for making a difference in the lives of others. She devoted 35 years to teaching and coaching high school students, during which she developed on of the largest leadership programs in the country. After retiring in 2013, she went to join the John C. Maxwell international speaking, training and coaching team, where she offers leadership, personal and professional development training for a variety of organizations. She conducted the Transformational Training for Paraguay and Costa Rica with the John Maxwell Company. Barbara is an active member in her local community of Fort Walton Beach, Florida. She has served as the Assistant Program Director for the Chamber’s Youth Entrepreneur Academy, a civilian Honorary Commander of the 505th at Hurlburt Field, the local Building Homes for Heros organization, Chairman of the Board for the Science Center, past Chair for Women Connect for the Chamber, and Programs Director for American Business Women.
