Pensacola Children's Chorus – Open Winter Auditions

The Pensacola Children's Chorus will be hosting winter auditions for its 29th season Saturday, December 15, 2018. Under the direction of Artistic Director, Alex Gartner, singers will receive a quality music education to include traditional, classical, choral training and musical theater.

“Joining the Pensacola Children's Chorus is so much more than signing up your child for a choir or a theater class,” Gartner says. “At PCC, we use music and performance as vehicles to shape and mold young people into the leaders of tomorrow. This happens in every choir, from the youngest to the oldest. Not only do these children grow skills, they also grow as people. And—we have a lot of fun along the way.”

Selected students will have the opportunity to perform in PCC's remaining two signature concerts (One World Many Voices and Showtime), participate in tours, and develop as a performer through choreography, vocal production and stage presence.

Interested parties should visit the PCC website (www.pensacolachildrenschorus.com) to schedule an audition. Choirs are assembled by age and skill. Financial Aid is available to those who qualify. No prior experience required.
