Nan DeStafney Awarded Rotary Ethics in Business Award

PENSACOLA, FL, MAY 15, 2018: Blues Angel Music co-owner, Nan DeStafney, has been named the 2018 Combined Rotary Clubs of Greater Pensacola and University of West Florida College of Business' Ethics in Business Award winner for small business. The award was presented on May 7th during the Combined Rotary Luncheon in downtown Pensacola.

The Ethics in Business Award recognizes individuals in business who exemplify Rotary International's concept of "service above self" in addition to working to build a positive sense of self-worth within the community.

Nominees are selected based on the following criteria:

- Adherence to the high ethical standards of honesty, integrity and consistency in dealing with employees, contractors and customers, while positively enhancing the economic well-being of the firm's stakeholders and providing jobs, opportunities and profits
- Participation in activities that are beneficial to the community beyond the provision of economic benefits
- Service as a leader or innovator in the firm's business sector

About Nan DeStafney

Nan retired from the Navy as a Lieutenant Commander. Soon after retiring, wed Blues Angel Music founder and co-owner Jim DeStafney, and the two have grown the store to be what it is today. Philanthropic efforts are at the core of who Nan is. She cares for others above herself absolutely.
