Pensacola's newest steakhouse and new-American restaurant, The District: Seville Steak and Seafood, is opening today at 123 E. Government Street. This expansion from the Seville Quarter family will open for business at 5:00 p.m. for dinner, by reservation only. The ribbon cutting will take place at 4:00 PM in front of the new facility directly across from Seville Quarter.

The District staff is highlighted by executive chef, Josh Warner, and General Manager, Gil Carmichael. Gil Carmichael has over four decades of hands-on food, beverage, and entertainment experience. Warner is excited for the opportunity to tie the historic Seville brand to Downtown Pensacola's booming resurgence.

The District will seat over 150 throughout its two floors, including a private dining room on the second floor and a relaxed bar and lounge environment. The restaurant will offer the finest cuts of select beef, dry-aged on premise in a specially designed meat locker, viewable to patrons. In addition to prime and top-choice steaks, The District will also feature Gulf Coast recipes and fresh seafood entrees.

The District is owned by Seville Quarter, the Mitchell family's well-known entertainment and dining complex located across the street, which will soon celebrate its 51st anniversary. The District: Seville Steak and Seafood aims to add another attractive component to the enterprise.

Reservations for opening night are required, but limited. To inquire about reservations, please call 850-332-5224, visit www.DistrictSteaks.com, or visit www.OpenTable.com. Lunch service availability will open in the coming weeks.
